Click the cloud. A preview of your images will show up and you can add descriptions and tags that will show up in Flickr. When done, click “Upload 1 Photo” in the upper right of the screen and then click “Upload.”

Now on the photostream, click on the image you want to add to the blog post. On the right, click the share button and choose the “Embed” option. Select the size you need (“Small 320” for pictures in an article or “Medium 800” for full width images) then copy the code from the window.

Switch over to Wordpress (Aurora).

In your post, switch over to “Text” view and select where you want to insert your picture. Paste the code from Flickr and when you switch back to “Visual” view you can use all of Wordpress’s image tools as usual.
